The Nebula Accounting programs may require some customization to work properly within your organization, including but not limited to the following: report formats, financial reports, check printing formats, tax reports, and work flow adjustments. You may also need to adjust security to properly meet your site's particular requirements.

Since the Nebula Accounting programs are large and complex, with many fields and options to enter properly and adjust, please be aware that it may take a lot of time to set-up and configure this software properly, there are many set-up and configuration options that must be reviewed and understood before implementation. Knowledge of basic accounting is assumed and required for the successful implementation of this product.

We also strongly recommend that the software be set-up in a test environment, tested fully, and experimented with before the software is operated in a live environment.

Nebula Development Inc. is not responsible for any changes that you make to the software, nor are we responsible for tracking the changes that you make to the software. You should already have a change management system in place and routinely being used by your programmers.

The software is provided completely on an "AS-IS" basis and there are no returns. Therefore, Please make sure you completely review the demo and make sure that you are completely satisfied with its operation, and that the software is workable for you. The Demo application that you can review on our site is exactly what you receive the source code for when you purchase the full product.

Given the advanced nature of the software and the requirements stated above, we only sell this product to Developers, Consultants, Value Added Resellers, and End-Users with their own IS Departments and / or their own consultants who have experience working with software of this size and complexity who agree that they can meet the above requirements for successful software implementation and development.
